

Intesa Sanpaolo listed for the third year running among the 100 most sustainable companies in the world

"Global 100", the list drawn up by Corporate Knights, was presented on January 25 at the World Economic Forum in Davos

Since 2005, Corporate Knights, the Canadian magazine that specialises in sustainable capitalism, draws up a list of the 100 most sustainable companies at world level, which is the result of a research that examines 4000 worldwide companies on the basis of eleven indicators that concern the environment, human resources, remuneration policy, management commitment to sustainability, innovation and transparency.

The ranking, which aims to distinguish the large companies who have developed the best strategies to manage today's risks and opportunities in the environmental, social and governance issues, was presented at the World Economic Forum in Davos and confirmed for the third year running the presence of Intesa Sanpaolo. This recognition is even more important when considering that Intesa Sanpaolo is the only Italian company in the ranking and only 6 banks were included.
